Important Foot Care Tips for Claw Toes!

What are Claw Toes?

A health condition where the toes bend and form a claw-like position is termed as claw foot or claw toes. It may appear among people from their birth (congenital) or in the later stages of life (acquired). Although claw toes may not appear problematic they can be uncomfortable and in some cases they are a result of diabetes or stroke and can be associated with more serious problems.

Wearing the right shoes that fit your feet is one of the key preventive measures. Avoid wearing shoes with high heels too. These shoes are prone to increase the pressure on the front part of your feet by over 50%!

Lower shoes that have rubber soles offer the maximum comfort to the feet. Ensure your shoes have a toe area (toe box) with double the depth to accommodate the toes. Make it a point to change your shoes from time to time (Worn out shoes can result in damaging your feet).

Some recommended foot care tips for people suffering from Claw Toes are:

1. Protect it: Shield or protect your claw toes from rubbing. Toe caps can protect the toe to cover the tip of the toe and relieve pain. If you are unsure ALWAYS ASK!

2. Wear proper shoes: Shoes with cushion soles which are deep, wide and fastening.

3. Exercise Regularly: There may be specific exercises like moving or stretching the toe by using your hands or picking a soft or small object. This keeps your toe joints flexible. Ask how these may help.

Moreover, keeping a towel flat under your feet and using the toes for crumpling it can be a good exercise too.

4. Apply Ice: In case you feel pain over your claw toes, it is advised to apply an ice pack at different times of the This may relieve stiffness and soreness.

With the above conservative measures and other possible options to relieve claw toes, you can be assured of good foot care. However if it continues causing problems, don't forget to consult your podiatrist!

5 Tips to Stay Protected From a Frostbite

An injury that occurs due to exposure of the body to extreme temperatures (below freezing point) is known as frostbite. The severe cold freezes the skin along with its underlying tissues. Feet, toes, and fingers are the areas that are usually affected. However, your ears, cheeks, and nose are also prone to developing frostbite.

The following foot care tips can help people in staying protected against frostbite:

1. Avoid tight socks: It is important to wear loose socks as the risk of frostbite increase with tight clothing. For other parts of your body, it is recommended to layer your clothing and use windproof as well as waterproof materials. Similarly, layer a pair of woolen socks over the socks within.

2. Avoid walking barefeet: If you catch a frostbite then make sure you do not walk on your feet or rub against the frostbitten area. Also, make sure you do not use a hair dryer or fire or anything that offers direct heat to the area.

3. Keep a check on temperatures: People often fail to gauge the intensity of cold outside. Hence, if you are about to go outside make sure you are well prepared for the weather conditions.

4. Stay Hydrated: In case you feel pain or tingling, make sure you drink lots of water and remain hydrated. Keeping your surroundings warm is also important. However, do not consume alcohol in cold weather - it is a bad mix as alcohol makes you lose heat faster or make you feel warmer than you actually are.

5. Do not stay outside for long: If the weather outside is very cold then it is better you spend your day indoors. Exercising to keep the body warm is also something that has to be done on a daily basis in winter or cold weather.

With such precautions in place, you can ensure that your feet stay protected from catching a frostbite!

David Good Attends College of Podiatry Conference- Glasgow 2016

The team of Podiatrists including the Directors from The Footcare Centre attended our annual conference back in November. It was a particularly enjoyable conference from which we learnt but more importantly we bonded further as a team as it was the first real opportunity that Des and Stuart, over from Canada had met our two newest Podiatrists' Paul and Nikki.

David Good Attends College of Podiatry Conference- Glasgow 2016

The first day started early at Heathrow Airport so that we could make the initial session of the Conference, from here there were several concurrent sessions and it was down to the individual Podiatrists to what they attended. My first lecture was on paediatrics within podiatry and I further developed my knowledge of tarsal coalition. The afternoon was an opportunity to meet with our current and possible future suppliers of equipment and sundries, so that we could learn of anything new that is out or on the horizon. Following this I went to a dermatology session based on allergies and the skin current which reaffirmed my knowledge base. In the evening was when the laughs entered began.... our team held at the quiz which was the quiz which was Crowne Plaza where we were staying. Joining us was the current Chairman of our Society and the current Practice Accreditation officer, so we had to be on our best behaviour (well sort of). With our combined heads we managed fourth place.... in the circumstances this was a fair effort.

The Friday saw Podiatric Sport Musculoskeletal me attend both a Medicine and lecture which are of particular interest to me, as well as the two plenary sessions that all podiatrists attend. Back to the important and laughter subjects of food and laughter though, which saw us all go to the wonderfully intimate Tarantino Ristorante in the famous Sauchiehall Street, where we all had gorgeous starters, mains and desserts.

One of the most brilliantly delivered sessions I have ever attended at our annual conferences over 11yrs was conducted by John Lees a business speaker visiting from America in which he had a very interesting and amusing take on what common traits high achievers in business have. He highlighted the attitudes that are needed to become a successful practitioner both clinically and professionally, I am glad to say all our Podiatrists share this trait and I look forward to working with our energised team over the coming months to develop/expand our current systems. I would like to thank the whole team for a thoroughly enjoyable few days!
